

MALE BREAST REDUCTION – WITHOUT SURGERY

Before beautytek

After 6 Sessions

Beautytek is a non-invasive body shaping technique that can reduce breast tissue on male chests in as little as six sessions.

It is often the case that some men are unable to reduce this tissue with diet or regular visits to the gym. To date, liposuction has been the only option but now beautytek can achieve the results without the need for painful, invasive surgery.

The non-invasive, holistic treatment involves the client lying back on the couch and relaxing for around 45 minutes, whilst the clinician applies specially formulated electrolyte solutions to the abdomen and chest areas and then passes a brass probe over these areas.

Quite simply, beautytek works by supplying a very low electrical stimulus to the body's own energy system. The body is a battery with each cell having a positive and negative charge and containing billions of subatomic particles, called ions, which are also positively and negatively charged. The beautytek operator passes the probe along the meridians of the body. This measures and analyses the cell wall resistance and cell chemistry and provides the stimulus, precisely calibrated for each individual, to balance the ion grid, increase blood flow and metabolism, balance the body fluids and remove blockages in the lymphatic system to allow the toxins and fatty acids to be evacuated.

The client must drink at least 2 litres of water a day to ensure that the body is sufficiently hydrated and can take full benefit from the treatment.
